NEW YORK TRIBUNE The newspaper in the home is a necessity. Get one that can be safely read by the entire family. The Tribune is a paper that prints all the news of the world in such a manner as to be readable without offending the laws of good taste. It is a human paper—one edited by men and women; and while, at times, it may occasionally make mistakes, its readers believe and trust in it. There is nothing ever printed in the Tribune that will not instruct and educate, just as it is a fact that there is nothing ever printed that will offend decency. With the Sunday Tribune you get a handsome illustrated supplement of timely topics and a superb twenty page magazine with colored cover, which contains most interesting and up-to-date news. For sale by all newsstands. This, with other sections, goes to make up one of the most complete and interesting Sunday Newspapers published. The Daily and Sunday Tribune is the ideal family newspaper. A dollar bill sent to the Circulation Department of The Tribune, New York, will bring The Daily and Sunday Tribune into your family for one month. Or send $10 for one year.

The Buckboard. There are few persons who know the name of "buckboard" who have not applied to a vehicle," says a writer. "It was away back in the twenties, when the transportation of goods, wares and merchandise was almost entirely by wagon. A Dr. Buck was then in charge of military stores in route to army posts in the southwest. In East Tennessee much difficulty was experienced by reason of the rough roads, and there were frequent mishaps, mostly from wagons overturning. Dr. Buck overhauled the outfit, and abandoning the wagon bodies, long boards were set directly on the axles or hung below, and the stores were loaded in such a manner that there were no further delays from breakdowns, and the stores safely reached their destinations. In special emergency, too, the load could be shifted or taken off in a hurry. Dr. Buck's example was followed, especially when roads were rough, and soon much hauling was done by the use of wheels, axles and boards only. Now we have the buckboard, both in carriage and automobile forms, conforming closely to the original idea, though few suspect the source of it."—Chicago News.

Technical Swearing. The late Sir John Mills was a very keen fisherman. He used to tell a story of an old man who was his attendant during a day's sport in the north of England. The old man was full of local gossip and small scandal, and where the natural supply failed him he was clearly able to manufacture enough of his own to go on with. "I went out with the bishop yesterday," said the old man, referring to a popular church dignitary, who is also a good fisherman. "Ah," replied Mills. "What a good man!" "Well," continued the old fellow, "I may be, but I do swear a bit when 'e's fishing." "Oh, nonsense!" replied Mills. "I do not believe that." The old man insisted that he was right, however. "I'll give you an instance," he said. "I was standing 'longside of the bishop, man, as I might be astle of you, and 'e'd got a big fellow at the end of 'is line that was pretty high pullin' 'im off 'is feet, and I turns to 'is lordship and I says, "'E pulls—'ard, don't 'e?' and the bishop says, "'Yes, 'e do.' Well, now, ain't that swearin'?"—London M. A. P.

St. Patrick and the Roosters. St. Patrick's reputation as a snake charmer is known all the world over, but what he did to the roosters is a bit of history less disseminated. There is a small district in the heart of County Sligo, it seems, which strenuously resented the intrusion of the Scotchman, Suvvat (St. Patrick) had become exceedingly disconcerting and it was decided to put a damper on his progress. He said to his hostess, "Wake me when the cock crows." When he had gone to bed she whispered this command to the neighbors, and all the populace concealed their roosters under small crevices so they could not lift their heads high enough to crow. In consequence thereof the saint overslept himself and was furious when he discovered the trick that had been played on him. He laid his everlasting curse on the roosters of that district, and they have never crowed since.—Exchange.

Fixing a Photographer. Senator Stone of Missouri once made himself unpopular with a certain photographer. The latter individual appeared at the senator's room at the capitol and announced that he was there to take a picture. Stone expostulated, but in vain. A few days later the photographer again appeared and presented the pictures and also a bill for $10. Remembering how hopeless was his argument against having the picture taken, Senator Stone decided it would be still more useless for him to decline to pay for them. So he wrote a check. After the man's name was on the check he wrote the word "Photographer." When the man presented the check at the senate disbursing office for payment, he was required to indorse the check and write after his name, just as it was written on the face of the check, the word "Photographer."—St. Louis Republic.

A Limit to His Power. A curious historical anecdote is handed down from the time of James I. James, being in want of £20,000, applied to the corporation for a loan. The corporation refused. The king insisted. "But, sire, you cannot compel us," said the lord mayor. "No," exclaimed James, "but I'll ruin you and the city forever. I'll remove my courts of law, my court itself and my parliament to Winchester or to Oxford and make a desert of Westminster, and then think what will become of you." "May I please your majesty," replied the lord mayor, "you are at liberty to remove yourself and your courts to wherever you please; but, sire, there will always be one consolation to the merchants of London—your majesty cannot take the Thames along with you!"

Garrick's Wit. David Garrick on one occasion passed Tyburn as a huge crowd was assembling to witness the execution of a criminal. "Who is he?" asked the great actor of a friend who accompanied him. "I believe his name is Yowel," was the reply. "Ah," said Garrick, "I wonder which of the vowels he is, for there are several. At all events it is certain that it is neither U nor I!"—London Saturday Review.

Quite Natural. "Of course," said the tourist, "you know all about the antidotes for snake bite." "Certainly," replied the explorer. "Well, when a snake bites you what's the thing you do?" "Yell!"—Philadelphia Press.

Source of Supply. Minister—My dear little boy, why don't you get an umbrella? Jakey—Since pa has quit going to church he never brings home any more umbrellas.—Jewish Ledger. Every misfortune can be subdued with patience.—Socrates. Rheumatic Pains Relieved. B. F. Crocker, Esq., now 84 years of age, and for twenty years Justice of the Peace at Martinsburg, Iowa, says: "I am terribly afflicted with static rheumatism in my left arm and right hip. I have used three bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it did me lots of good." For sale by W. F. Creighton and Richard Gibson.

How He Did It. "When I was connected with a certain western railway," says a prominent official of an eastern line, "we had in our employ a brakeman who, for special service rendered to the road, was granted a month's vacation. "He decided to spend his time in a trip over the Rockies. We furnished him with passes. "He went to Denver and there met a number of his friends at work on one of the Colorado roads. They gave him a good time and when he went away made him a present of a mountain goat. "Evidently our brakeman was at a loss to get the animal home with him, so the express charges were very heavy at that time. Finally, however, hitting upon a happy expedient, he put out a shipping tag and tied it to the horns of the goat. Then he presented the beast to the office of the stock car line. "Well, that tag created no end of amusement, but it served to accomplish the end of the brakeman. It was inscribed as follows: "Please pass the butter. Thomas J. Meechin, brakeman, S. S. and T. Ry."—Harper's Weekly.

Ant Merchants. Ant merchants, clad in leather undergarments, are to be found in Paris, London and several other European cities. Wherever pheasants are preserved the ant merchant is in demand. It is not, however, ants, but the eggs of ants, that the man chiefly deals in. From every part of Europe ants are shipped to him, and he keeps them in tin cans—pieces similar in their nature to chicken runs—and he feeds and tends them carefully, so that their health will keep fine and they will lay generously. The eggs he packs in wooden boxes and ships to various parts, dukes, counts and other game preserves in different parts of the world. And the ants themselves he stays as soon as they cease to lay, pressing them and selling them in black blocks similar to plug tobacco to dealers in birds and bird food. It is interesting to be an ant merchant, but leather undergarments are essential to the business, as the little creatures bite unmercifully.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.
